Kathryn Beaumont models a tiny animated Alice falling into a bottle awash in tears

Beaumont shows how it might

ALICE IN WONDERLAND

Kathryn Beaumont teaches at an elementary school near the Disney Studios. When she was 10, hardly older than her pupils today, she was among Walt Disney's prized performers. For after listening to dozens of candidates, Disney had signed her as the voice of Alice for his animated feature, "Alice in Wonderland."

"I was born in London, but my parents came to California when I was eight," says Kathryn, who is married now and known in the classroom as Mrs. Levine.

"I recorded lines for Alice as filming progressed — for two years. Then I went on a promotional tour when the picture was released, and returned to the studio to do the voice of Wendy in 'Peter Pan.' That was lucky timing. Wendy was supposed to be older than Alice, and my voice had changed just enough by then."

Animation artists, as Kathryn remembers, must have live models to draw from. For "Alice" she had to clamber into a large plastic contrivance representing the bottle floating on a sea of tears, and ride in it while it was rocked on a dolly. For "Peter Pan" she performed some of Tinker Bell's actions as well as Wendy's.

After guesting on Disney's first two television specials, "One Hour in Wonderland" (1950) and "The Walt Disney Christmas Show" (1951), Kathryn gave up acting.

"I really didn't have the motivation for an acting career," she says. "I went on to high school, and graduated from USC. In the mid-1960s I worked for the Department of Defense, teaching children of the U.S. Air Force troops in Germany. That was a marvelous experience. My mother had a background in teaching and I always wanted to work with children."

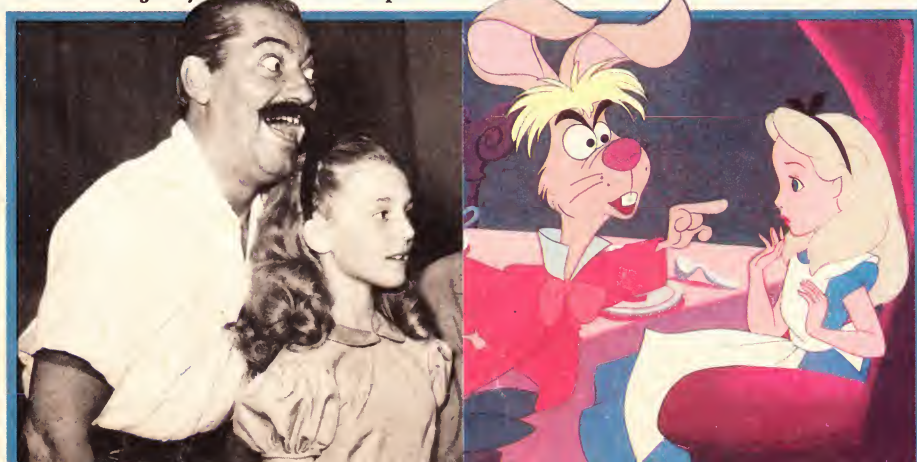

Before leaving Disney, Kathryn recorded the voice track for the original Alice in Wonderland attraction at Disneyland. Recently she was invited to record a tape for the new Alice in Wonderland opening there this spring. Picking up a script and raising the pitch of her voice only slightly, she repeated a couple of lines she had first read in 1954:

"My adventures in Wonderland began when I followed the White Rabbit down the rabbit hole. All of a sudden — I fell! Down — down — down..."

It was the same little girl speaking whose curiosity led her into a fabulous world of imagination over 30 years ago.

Alice's wanderings through Wonderland challenged Walt Disney and his artists every foot of the way. To transform Lewis Carroll's prose into a feature-length animated film, they strengthened the story line and added some characters. Then they had to figure out how their animated stars would sound. No one had ever heard a caterpillar, Cheshire cat, walrus, dormouse or any of Carroll's bizarre brainchildren talk—and voices key the personalities of animated characters.

Disney picked Ed Wynn to speak for the Mad Hatter. Wynn, a vaudeville and radio buffoon, had a high-pitched, quavery voice punctuated by lisps and silly giggles. He proved so amusing that Disney called him back for a comedy lead in "The Absent-Minded Professor." Wynn's rubbery face and fluttery hands were surefire laugh-getters, and he went on to appear in six more movies at the studio.

Disney turned to Richard Haydn, another stage and radio veteran, for the voice of the hookah-puffing

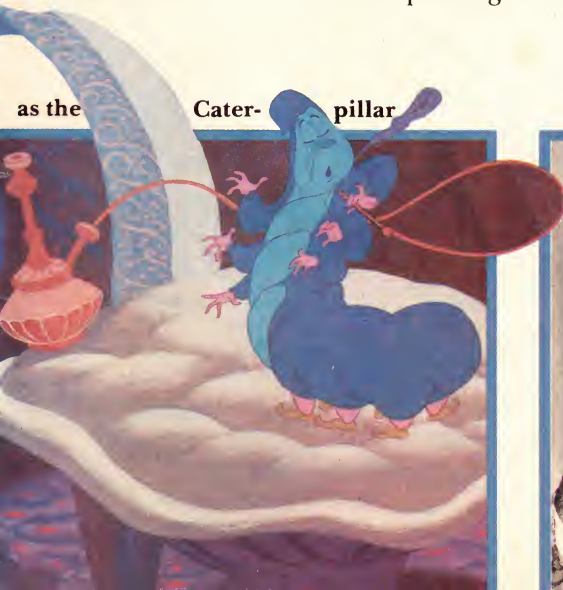

Caterpillar whose water pipe occasionally moistens his smoke-ring words. Haydn, a dry-voiced actor with a brittle British accent, had no trouble dampening his vowels for the role. His radio repertoire included a fellow named Edwin Carp, who mimicked fishes. Haydn is seen on The Disney Channel this month in "Ball of Fire" (see page 7).

For the limpid voice of the Cheshire Cat, Disney chose a studio favorite — Sterling Holloway. He had talked for the stork in "Dumbo" and Flower the skunk in "Bambi," and the quality of his voice was such that Disney animators loved working with it. Holloway became a vocal staple at the studio, putting words in the mouths of such animated characters as Kaa the snake in "The Jungle Book," Amos the mouse in "Ben and Me," Roquefort the mouse in "The Aristocats" and Pooh in "Winnie the Pooh."

Remembering Jerry Colonna's glass-shattering recitation of "Casey at the Bat," Disney brought back the mustachioed pop-eyed comedian for the voice of the March Hare. A popular recording artist, if his singing style could be called art, and a funster with the Bob Hope troupe for years, "Professor" Colonna had mastered an inimitable bray.

For the balance of his animated cast, Disney enrolled Verna Felton (Queen of Hearts); Pat O'Malley (Tweedledee, Tweedledum, Walrus and Carpenter), Bill Thompson (White Rabbit and Dodo), Joseph Kearns (Doorknob), Dink Trout (King of Hearts), James Macdonald (Dormouse), Doris Lloyd (The Rose), Queenie Leonard (Bird in Tree), the Mellomen (Card Painters) and other distinguished, distinctive vocal talents. ♡

By 1916, at age 26, Chaplin was world famous

CHAPLIN WAS DISNEY'S IDOL

Every youngster has a hero, and for Walt Disney it was Charlie Chaplin.

Like millions of other schoolkids at the time, Walt thought Chaplin's knockabout, kick 'em-in-the-pants style was high comedy. He won 25 cents impersonating Charlie in an amateur contest, and used his first camera to photograph himself imitating Chaplin. He was still in high school, little dreaming they would ever meet.

In 1923, when Walt arrived in Hollywood as a fledgling movie maker, he walked past Chaplin's studio hoping to glimpse the famous funnyman. Ten years later, with Mickey Mouse an unrivalled cartoon star, Disney gave Chaplin credit for much of Mickey's personality.

"We thought of a mouse that would have something of the wistfulness of Chaplin—a little

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S THE GENTLE

(Narrators: Laurence Olivier,

"The Gentleman Tramp" is a touching tribute to Charlie Chaplin, widely regarded as the funniest and most controversial comedian in the movie world.

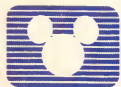

This documentary, checked and approved by Chaplin himself, begins with his impoverished childhood in London and ends with his triumphant return to Hollywood. Between those 83 years is a rags-to-riches story told in 80 minutes of film clips, photographs, home movies and rare footage from Chaplin's own vaults. Many of the comedies highlighted in this program will be shown in their entirety on The Disney Channel's festival of Chaplin films premiering next month.

Charlie is introduced as an urchin who joins a troupe of child dancers and rises to popularity with a traveling company of comedians. He is discovered by Mack Sennett and appears in his first movie, "Making a Living," in 1914 at age 24. For his second film he concocts a costume consisting of baggy pants, shoes worn on the wrong fellow trying to do the best he could," Walt said.

He included a caricatured Charlie Chaplin in the cast of two animated cartoons, "Mickey's Gala Premiere" (1933) and "Mickey's Polo Team" (1936).

Walt and Charlie eventually met in 1932, when feet, a tight-fitting coat, a derby, cane and mustache. The Little Tramp, the character that will make him famous, is born.

For almost 40 years, Chaplin is one of Hollywood's richest and most idolized stars. But his personal life is fraught with scandal, bitterness and contention. His films are masterpieces, whirling audiences from laughter to tears and back again while reflecting many of his own experiences. In 1952, he leaves the United States to live happily in Europe with his fourth wife, the former Oona O'Neill, and their eight children. Not until 1972, five years before his death, does Charles Chaplin return to Hollywood for a special Academy Award, an honor long overdue him.

Says critic Judith Crist: "This must-see movie has captured the quintessence of the artist and his art. It provides invaluable highlights from 17 Chaplin films, and puts them into the context of his life and our times."

January 4, 7, 12, 16, 18, 20, 22, 28, 31

United Artists agreed to distribute Disney films. Chaplin was one of the four "united artists," and proved to be a Disney fan.

"You're going to develop more. You're getting ahold of your medium," Charlie told Walt. "But to protect your independence, you've got to do as I have done — own every picture you make."

Charlie and Scraps in "A Dog's Life"

Walt took his advice. Four years later Chaplin made his first visit to the Disney Studios and left his autograph (rarely given) in the guest book.

The two individualists achieved enduring fame; now they are finally sharing the spotlight. This month Chaplin's film biography, "The Gentleman Tramp," premieres exclusively on The Disney Channel. Next month a series of Chaplin classics begins with "Modern Times," to be followed by "The Kid," "A Woman of Paris," "The Gold Rush," "The Circus," "City Lights," "The Great Dictator," "Monsieur Verdoux," "Limelight," "A King in New York" and numerous one-reel comedies.

Charles Chaplin and Walt Disney, whom author Thornton Wilder called "the two presiding geniuses of the movies," have joined forces at last.

NEW ADVENTURES FROM THE AUSTRALIAN FRONTIER

FIVE MILE CREEK

(Louise Caire Clark, Rod Mullinar, Liz Burch, Michael Caton, Priscilla Weems, Martin Lewis, Gus Mercurio, with Jay Kerr as Con Madigan)

Three Americans and three Australians gather at Five Mile Creek, a stagecoach stop on the road to the Australian gold fields in the 1860s. Their continuing adventures form this dramatic series exclusively on The Disney Channel.

Con Madigan hands the reins to partner Jack Taylor

Episode 5 ("The Scrub Bulls," premiering January 4) finds partners Jack Taylor (Rod Mullinar) and Con Madigan (Jay Kerr) expanding their coach service. A land dispute pits Taylor against a local squatter named Barney Drummond (Tony Barry).

Maggie Scott (Louise Caire Clark), who helps run The Haven at Five Mile Creek, befriends Barney's wife Florence (Susan Leith), and they try to make peace between the men. The two Drummond children meet Maggie's 10-year-old daughter Hannah (Priscilla Weems) and Sam Sawyer (Martin Lewis), a homeless boy living at the waystation. With no other school, Maggie turns teacher and Five Mile Creek gets a classroom.

In "Mothers and Fathers" (beginning January 18), Maggie sees a Wanted poster for her missing husband Adam. Hannah, heartbroken to learn her father is an outlaw, runs away. Sam and a friendly aborigine, familiar with the bush, follow her trail as night falls...

When Maggie faces the possibility that she'll never find her husband and begin their life together in Australia, her friend Kate Wallace (Liz Burch) assures her that "I can't imagine Five Mile Creek without you." But a surprise awaits them in next month's episode, "Gold Fever."

Off Camera

After each episode, candid interviews with the stars take viewers behind the camera for an inside look at the production of "Five Mile Creek." This month Australian actress Susan Leith, who plays Florence Drummond in Episode 5, and Michael Caton (Paddy Malone) describe their experiences.

A chorus, orchestra and dazzling stage set captivate Anka's studio audience

Every Sunday evening, Paul Anka and celebrity guests deliver a half-hour of music, comedy and relaxed variety entertainment in this new series, a Disney Channel exclusive.

Elegant song stylist Dionne Warwick joins Paul on the opening show. Other guest stars this month are songwriter Sammy Cahn, singer Cheryl Ladd (former Charley's Angel currently appearing in "Now and Forever"), and youthful hockey superstar Wayne Gretzky.

Although Paul has written over 400 tunes in his quarter century career — including such contemporary classics as 20-million seller "Diana," the "Tonight Show Theme" and Frank Sinatra's signature piece "My Way"—he has done little television. He told producer Burt Rosen that he would do a variety series only if it could be done "his way"—loose and intimate.

The resulting shows brim with Paul's warmth and rapport as he mingles with the audience, duets with guests like Dionne and Cheryl, and brings spectators on stage to introduce acts. Paul's long-time associate Don Costa conducts the full orchestra from a glittering stage set. Future guest stars include Peggy Lee, Andy Gibb and the Smothers Brothers.

Canadian-born Paul spends up to nine months a year touring internationally before retreating to his hilltop home in Carmel, California. There he enjoys his art collection, wine cellar, recording studio and the company of his wife Anne and five daughters.

One Little Indian

(James Garner,
Vera Miles,
Clay O'Brien)

Accused of desertion, Corporal Clint Keyes (James Garner) escapes a hangman's noose on the back of an ornery U.S. Camel Corps remnant named Rosie. With a relentless sergeant in pursuit, Keyes becomes the reluctant guardian of an Indian boy (Clay O'Brien) who's searching for his displaced mother. Together they manage to outwit the Army and find a home with a gentle, attractive young widow (Vera Miles).

Camels came to the American deserts in 1856 as part of an experiment called the U.S. Camel Corps—a bit of military lore that provides the basis for this offtrail comedy. Camels, so the cavalry boasted, could travel twice as fast as mules and carry thousand-pound loads for short distances.

But they had terrible dispositions, as James Garner learned in "One Little Indian." "Camels are the most stubborn malicious, stupid and uncooperative animals I've ever worked with," said Garner about his co-star Rosie. "And those are their good qualities."

Garner On Garner

"I'm just a working actor who happened to keep his head afloat for 30 years. Naturally I'm proud of my work, but don't let's take it all too seriously."

So saying, James Garner talks about his life and career in Hollywood.

"Henry Fonda is the professional I modeled myself after. I watched him for a year while I was in the cast of 'The Caine Mutiny Court Martial.' He'd walk out on stage and eyes were riveted to him.

"What I do as an actor is just react to a situation, or say the words that some writer wrote. I play the anti-hero a little bit, a guy who's got to be the winner but appears to be a loser. That saves me in pictures like 'One Little Indian,' where the co-stars are two precocious kids and a scene-stealing camel.

"My work hasn't always been easy. I've broken my spine, I've broken my kneecap twice, I've broken all the knuckles in my hand, I've broken 13 ribs. I've had so many injuries I couldn't count them.

"But there are compensations. I have worked with lovely ladies like Doris Day, Audrey Hepburn, Jean Simmons, Eva Marie Saint, Lauren Bacall and Julie Andrews.

"I remember doing a kissing scene with Audrey Hepburn. I went home that night and sat down. My wife asked if I had a tough day. I said yeah, I've been kissing Audrey Hepburn all day and my pucker's tuckered. I thought she was going to kill me—good-naturedly, of course, since she knows that I look at it as a business. I must have kissed Julie Andrews 500 times. But I lived through it. You do the best you can. It's a tough job, but somebody has to do it."

KING OF DOG STARS RETURNS!

THE ADVENTURES OF RIN-TIN-TIN

(Lee Aaker, James Brown, Joe Sawyer, Rin-Tin-Tin)

Since April, "Zorro" has slashed his "Z" across your screens each weeknight and you've seemed to enjoy every minute of it. The popular 78-episode series will be brought back later this year.

Rin-Tin-Tin's trouble-shooters at Fort Apache

Replacing "Zorro" is another fondly remembered series, "The Adventures of Rin-Tin-Tin." A remarkable 81% of Disney Channel subscribers surveyed said they would be very interested in seeing the king of dog stars return to the home screen.

In "Meet Rin-Tin-Tin," which opens the series, Rinty and his young master Rusty (Lee Aaker) are at Fort Apache where, as the only survivors of a wagon train massacre, they have been adopted by the cavalry of Company B.

This handsome German shepherd is fourth in the Rin-Tin-Tin dynasty that began in 1925 when Rinty I made the first of 20 movies for then-struggling Warner Bros. They were so popular—and profitable—that he was known off-screen as "the mortgage lifter" and "the dog that saved Warners."

Rin-Tin-Tin Jr. worked in talkies through the 1930s. Rinty III served in the K-9 Corps during World War II, and made his movie bow in 1947 with little Bobby Blake (who grew up to be Robert Blake of "Baretta") in "The Return of Rin-Tin-Tin."

Rinty and Lee Aaker

Rinty IV appeared in only one picture, "Million Dollar Mermaid," before launching "The Adventures of Rin-Tin-Tin" in 1954. The series ran for five years, was among the top 20 TV shows in popularity, and unleashed a flood of character merchandise from comic books to dog collars.

Romance and mystery on the island of Crete key this thriller about an English girl pursued by a jewel thief.

Hayley Mills plays the 18-year-old who finds adventure—and a young man to share it—while vacationing in Greece. The supporting cast is enhanced by Pola Negri, siren of the silent screen, as a shady millionairess with a passion for gems.

This adaptation of Mary

Hayley Mills and Peter McEnery are targets of a deathdealing jewel thief on the Greek island of Crete built around 100 A.D., and Venetian architecture of the 13th century.

Hayley Mills was 12 when she debuted at the Disney Studio in "Pollyanna." She made five more pictures there. By the time she graduated to a grownup role in "The Moon-Spinners," she had become Disney's most dazzling young movie star. "The Parent Trap," in which she plays twins, is coming soon to The Disney Channel.

(Paul Smith, Tony Barry, Henry Szepts)

Platypus Cove is a waterfront community where 15-year-old Jim Mason (Paul Smith) has had one brush with the law and is trying to stay out of trouble.

Easier said than done. Tugboat owner Frank Nelson (Tony Barry) gives him a job as deckhand after Jim saves Frank's son from drowning, but when an attempt is made to sabotage the tug, Jim becomes a prime suspect.

The story culminates in a breathtaking speedboat chase as Jim and his friends pursue the real culprits.

with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans

Roy and Dale, looking back over 50 years in Hollywood, remember Roy's reign at Republic Studios and the year (1948) he made "Under California Stars."

In this, his 83rd western, Roy takes on a gang of horse thieves who steal his golden palomino, Trigger. Andy Devine and the Sons of the Pioneers help round up the outlaws.

Roy is the founder and only living member of the original Sons of the Pioneers. They made 65 movies and hundreds of Later fiddler Hugh Farr and his guitarist brother Karl joined the trio, renamed at that point the Sons of the Pioneers. When Roy broke away in 1937 to become a singing cowboy star, musician-vocalist Pat Brady replaced him.

ALICE in WONDERLAND

(Voices of
 Kathryn Beaumont,
 Ed Wynn, Richard Haydn,
 Sterling Holloway,
 Jerry Colonna,
 Verna Felton)

Walt Disney's full-length animated version of the Lewis Carroll classic premieres exclusively on The Disney Channel. Twenty-six stars lend their vocal talents to this fanciful, song-filled delight.

Charles Dodgson, a whimsical mathematician who wrote nonsense tales under the name of Lewis Carroll, invented his "Alice" stories to amuse 10-year-old Alice Liddell on a summer outing in 1862. Almost a century later, Walt Disney turned them into an endearing film.

Alice is ordered to taste a magic mushroom by a pipe-smoking Caterpillar who has become a butterfly

Alice's adventures begin when she tumbles down a rabbit hole into a realm of curious creatures that defy logic at every turn. A grinning Cheshire Cat bewilders her with double-talk, a Caterpillar's words go up in smoke, a Mad Hatter throws an absurd "un-birthday" party as Alice seeks her way back to reality.

Disney modified Sir John Tenniel's illustrations to reflect the spirit of the Wonderland stories. Ten songs and 34 speaking characters enhance the production.

TEN WHO DARED

(Brian Keith, John Beal,
 James Drury, R. G. Armstrong, Ben Johnson)

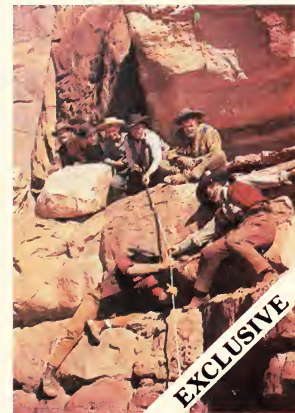

In 1869 a one-armed Civil War major named John Wesley Powell led nine companions on the first descent of the Colorado River through the Grand Canyon.

Their feat is a matter of history, reenacted with all the excitement of the original in "Ten Who Dared." With his customary respect for facts, Walt Disney sent 86 locationers on a 370-mile expedition from Lee's Ferry to Lake Mead. They shot the picture in Powell's wake, framing it against monumental rock formations and mesas carved by the Colorado River.

"We made the journey exactly as Powell did, except we had canned food," said associate producer James Algar.

BALLERINA

(Mette Honningen,
Kirsten Simone, Hennig Kronstam, Jennifer Agutter)

The enchanted, demanding world of ballet fascinates young Mette Sorenson (Mette Honningen).

Her parents differ over whether she should devote herself to the rigorous life of a dancer. She is encouraged by her mentor, Kirsten Simone, a soloist with the Royal Danish Ballet (founded in 1813).

After overcoming all competitors and her own self-doubt, Mette has an opportunity to dance the lead role in "Coppelia," but a sudden injury threatens to spoil her debut.

Copenhagen landmarks and performances by members of the Royal Danish Ballet lend authenticity to the production. "Ballerina" introduced 11-year-old Jenny Agutter to American film audiences.

She recently starred in "An American Werewolf in London" and Disney's "Amy."

Mickey Mouse CLUB

"I just want ordinary kids," Walt Disney said in 1955 when his search for the original Mouseketeers began. But the Mouseketeers, as most nostalgic viewers remember them, were far from ordinary...

Old fans and new can rejoin the gang for music, fun and serialized adventures like "Corky and White Shadow."

Mon.-Fri., 5:30 p.m.

Donald Duck hosts and stars in this daily half hour of cartoon comedy.

The determined drake is all over the place as he fights a destructive gopher, flies a rattletrap airplane and runs a shooting gallery.

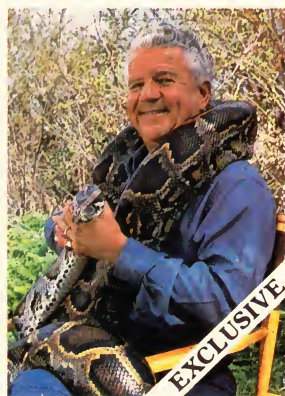

Pluto drops in for a housewarming with a stork, and Goofy offers pointers on how to ride a horse, how to sleep and how to take photographs.

New! ANIMAL WORLD

Bill Burrud travels from Antarctica to Ecuador for closeups of wildlife. Penguins, skua birds and leopard seals thrive at the icy South Pole, while boa constrictors, ocelots, anteaters and exotic birds populate Ecuadorian jungles. Each program closes with an "Animal Oddities" feature and a short quiz.

An ecologist-film maker for 30 years, Burrud has taken his cameras everywhere. The result is six million feet of irreplaceable film, narrow escapes from wild animals and the coils of a boa constrictor, and an ongoing campaign to preserve global wildlife. Commissioners in Kenya use a

"The Legend of the Boy and The Eagle"

A Hopi Indian legend tells of a young boy exiled to the desert after releasing his tribe's sacrificial golden eagle. For twelve moons the boy hunts and travels with the great bird. When he returns to his village, he is harassed into a dramatic demonstration of the powerful bond between them.

Writer-director Jack Couffer learned of the legend while visiting the oldest settled community in the United States—the Hopi village at Oraibi, Arizona. This live-action drama follows "Mr. Scoutmaster." (See page 18).

"The Art of Self-Defense"

Goofy demonstrates all manner of defensive combat from the Stone Age to the 20th century. He also portrays Father Time, who introduces each era. This cartoon follows "The Adventures of Young Robin Hood" (See page 20).

"Run, Appaloosa, Run"

Mary Blackfeather (Adele Palacios), a young Nez Percé Indian in northwest Idaho, raises an appaloosa colt she names Holy Smoke.

They are separated, and the horse begins adventures that lead to near-tragedy and suffering at the hands of a circuit rodeo rider. When Holy Smoke is finally reunited with Mary, they team up to win the Hell's Mountain relay race, a cross-country contest designed to test a horse's endurance and a rider's ability.

Selectively bred by the Nez Percé for 200 years, appaloosas are known for their stamina, speed and intelligence. They are popular in paddocks today, and were considered the greatest horse of the Old West.

THE ACTS

FEATURETTES, SHORT SUBJECTS AND CARTOONS!

"Magic and Music"

Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony" and a boogie-woogie version of Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumblebee" are interpreted visually in this animated short.

The numbers, from Disney's "Fantasia" and "Melody Time," illustrate how animators create imagery from entirely different forms of music. Enjoy "Magic and Music" after "Ballerina" (See page 15).

"Bud's Garage"

Here's the perfect home-made antidote to arcade mania and gadget dependency! Bud uses a heap of resourcefulness to turn odds and ends into "neat stuff." Kids learn to rely on simple equipment and their own inventiveness to have a good time.

This month Bud makes monorail cars out of paper bags and balloons, an activity adults will enjoy too! In fact, after shooting this sequence, the film crew reported going straight home and trying it with their kids!

Moby Duck, Donald's seafaring relative, guides a tour of Pacific islands and explores life beneath the ocean. Combining live-action with animation, the featurette follows "Platypus Cove" (See page 13).

Pelican holds the line while Moby Duck spins yarns

"Home Made Home"

Goofy encounters countless obstacles while building his home. When he finally has the gang over for a housewarming, the whole structure collapses around them. This cartoon follows "Ballerina" (See page 15).

Welcome To Pooh Corner

Pooh and his pals make learning fun for youngsters. With gentle humor and charm, the puppet-ronic playmates from the Hundred Acre Wood teach lighthearted lessons about personal values such as optimism in an episode entitled "Clouds," and responsibility in "Brighten Your Corner."

Songs like "Responsible Persons," "Keep Your Sunny Side Up" and "Pick It Up" reinforce ideas in a

Barry of the Great St. Bernard

(Jean Claude Dauphin, Pierre Tabard, Maurice Teynac)

Often only a St. Bernard rescue dog stood between life and death for an alpinist 200 years ago. This is the true story of Barry, most famous of those heroic dogs.

In the early 1800s at an alpine hospice run by monks, young Martin and a St. Bernard pup named Barry are being trained as members of a mountain rescue team. Their devotion to each other threatens their effectiveness, for dogs and men must often work alone.

The test comes when Martin is buried under a snowslide while trying to rescue an old man and four children. Barry must decide whom he'll help first. January 3, 7, 12, 14, 20, 23, 27, 31

One boy (George Winslow) claims to be the son of wealthy parents. When caught in this lie, he runs away. The scoutmaster not only gets lost during the search, but suffers other rude shocks on the road to understanding.

THE GUMBY® SHOW

"He was once a little green slab of clay, you should see what Gumby can do today." So goes the theme song for the flexible superstar, who celebrates his 29th birthday on January 29th.

In "Gumby's Birthday," he tracks down his birthday present, a runaway toy train. As top-daub in the land of claymation, Gumby jousts with the Black Knight to become "Knight for a Day;" then is nominated as a "Candidate for President" by Pokey, Prickle and Goo, who shape him up for the campaign trail by interviewing great presidents.

Brainchild of Art Clokey, Gumby made his TV debut on "The Howdy Doody Show." He went on to star in his own series and was a major television character for over 15 years. The current "Gumbymania" sweeping the country is attributed to the number of children who grew up with Gumby, and now have little "Gumbyites" of their own.

THE EXPLORERS "Chiefs and Kings of Indonesia"

Niasian tribesmen

On the Indonesian island of Nias, a Stone Age culture staggers towards extinction.

Anthropologist-explorer Stephen Lansing has studied many of Indonesia's 10,000 islands. He examines the huge stone artifacts and primitive slash-and-burn agricultural methods of the Niasian tribesmen.

Cut off from trade routes and long avoided because of their reputation as head-hunters, the Niasians now see their way of life threatened by 20th century civilization. Lansing contrasts this with the rapidly evolving culture on the nearby island of Bali.

SNOW BEAR

(Narrated by John McIntire)

Deep in the arctic wilderness a teenage Eskimo boy struggles to become a great hunter, with the huge polar bear he raised from a cub as his only companion.

In Disney True-Life Adventure tradition, this outdoor drama was filmed as written — against bleak Alaskan snowscapes. The story was conceived by producer Harry Tytle, and the title role went to a 9-foot, 1100-pound bear he spotted while scouting unusual animal acts for Disneyland. An Eskimo named Steve Kaleak plays the young hero.

MICKEY'S Just for Kids SECTION

Hi there!

I'm making my list of New Year's Resolutions. Those are promises you make to yourself to change bad habits or start new good ones. For instance, I've promised to eat more cheese. (That should be easy!) Donald's promised to keep his temper, Pluto's resolved to remember where he buries his bones, and Goofy wants to be more graceful.

What are your resolutions? Helping Mom? Learning a new sport or skill? Being healthy? While you're at it, resolve to share all the fun on The Disney Channel and in the "Just for Kids" section with your friends and family!

Happy New Year! We're off to a great start together.

Your Pal,

MICKEY MOUSE

Donald's CHANNEL CHATTER

I was going to resolve to keep my temper this year, except I lost it and now I can't find it anywhere!

When you make all those resolutions as Mickey suggests, I hope you'll also promise to send me lots of pictures and letters. If one thing makes ducks madder than wet hens, it's not getting any mail!

Remember, if you want to submit your picture for possible use on A SMALL WORLD or right here, draw it in color on white paper (turned sideways) and write your name, address, age and the name of your cable system. Remember to tell me your address so I can write back!

BUILD A BALLOON MONORAIL!

When it's too cold to play outside, you can still have some fast-paced fun zipping Bud's balloon monorail across your room. YOU'LL NEED: 1 brown paper lunch bag, 1 balloon, 2 paper clips, fishing line or heavy cotton thread.

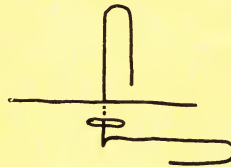

DIRECTIONS:

- 1) Tie fishing line or thread from one fairly high point in the room to another (such as between two doorknobs, two chair backs etc.) Remember to take the lines down when you're finished.

- 2) Open lunch bag and place it on its side. Punch small holes at bottom and top of the bag's narrow side.

Bend both paper clips as shown. Insert one end of a paper clip in each hole with the other end sticking out to make a hook.

ENDS. Quickly place inflated balloon into paper bag and let go! The force of the expelled air makes your monorail move!

- 4) Decorate your paper bag to look like a rocket, spaceship, airplane, make-believe bird, or blimp!

Dear Friends:

Isn't it exciting to have a brand new year to look forward to?

Around here, we're really thrilled about the new movies and programs that will be airing in 1984!

My first big news for you is that next month you can see an exclusive series of Charlie Chaplin's classic films! But first be sure to see "The Gentleman Tramp," Chaplin's fascinating rags-to-riches life story airing this month. Frankly, I didn't know much about Chaplin or his movies until I saw this film. I never realized how touching some of his comedies are and how well they represent their era.

Another project already well underway is our next exclusive made-for The Disney Channel movie called "Gone Are the Dayes." It's a comedy-thriller about a family that has to do a quick disappearing act. Harvey Korman and Susan Anspach star.

Our head of production, Ron Miziker, wanted me to tell you about our new variety show, entitled "Steve Allen's Music Room." Ron's very enthused about this series, and as a longtime Steve Allen fan myself, I can understand why. Steve will be playing host to wonderful guest stars like Sammy Davis Jr., Rosemary Clooney and Paul Williams. They'll be reminiscing, singing—and having a good time. Stay "tuned in" for more news about Steve in coming months.

Oh, one last thing. As we add new shows, debut new movies, adjust our schedule etc., your opinions really help us create the kind of viewing you want. So please keep in touch!

Best regards,

Linda

THREE CHEERS FOR FIVE MILE CREEK!

My daughters and I have been looking forward to "Five Mile Creek" since we first saw "The Making of Five Mile Creek" in October. Now after seeing it, we're already eagerly awaiting the next episodes in the series. We love it!

It's full of interesting characters, well-acted, with lovely scenery, good dialogue, a touch of history, and a great story! What more could anyone want?

We've been impressed with The Disney Channel all along—but "Five Mile Creek" is simply magnificent. We'll be sorry when the series ends.

MOVIE SCHEDULE CHANGES SUGGESTED

When scheduling a new batch of movies, could you stagger their introduction well into the month, as well as carry over a few from the previous month? As it is, by the middle of the month, we've seen everything.

Frank Thomas
Yakima, WA

I've forwarded these and similar suggestions to Chris LaValle, our scheduling manager. If there's enough subscriber demand for these changes, we'll certainly try to accommodate them. The Disney Channel changes films and programs at the start of each month and rotates them in different time slots to give all our viewers equal chance to see everything.

NEWER VIEWERS HOPE FOR REPEATS OF FAVORITE FILMS

Our cable company didn't offer The Disney Channel until August, so we missed a lot. Is there a chance you will rerun the programs we missed sometime in the future?

Rosemary Hill
New Braunfels, TX

Although we have not yet scheduled programs from previous months to repeat, recent newcomers to The Disney Channel can be certain of seeing the films and programs they missed at some time in the future.

Exploring the Archives

Dave Smith, head of Walt Disney Archives, has the facts on all things Disney. Letters concerning the history of the company and its productions are handled by the Archives.

I would like to know how Donald Duck became the uncle of Huey, Dewey and Louie. —K. B., Independence, Mo.

Huey, Dewey and Louie were left in Donald Duck's care by his sister, Dumbella, many years ago. This story is told in the cartoon, "Donald's Nephews," as well as in a comic strip which has been reprinted in the book, "Donald Duck," edited by Marcia Blitz and published by Harmony Books.

Bewatched, bothered and bewildered White Rabbit is late for a date

Was the Disney version of "Alice in Wonderland" the first one on film?

No. There were several silent versions, and three in the sound era—two with actors (1931 and 1933) and one with puppets (1950). Walt Disney had an early silent series about an Alice character who visited Cartoonland.

How many Academy Awards did Walt Disney win? —B. S., Buena Park, Calif.

Walt Disney personally won 32, which is by far the record. This includes the prestigious Irving Thalberg award.

Would you please tell me what has happened to Kevin Corcoran (Moochie) now that he is grown? —Mrs. J. A., Moss Point, Miss.

After starring in childhood as Moochie and later as a young character actor in such Disney pictures as "Johnny Shiloh," Kevin Corcoran went on to become a film and television producer.

When did Walt Disney start doing his nature films? —C. N., Minneapolis, Minn.

The first one was "Seal Island," which won the Oscar for best documentary of 1948. Walt called his series True-Life Adventures. There were 13 films in the series, eight of which won Academy Awards.

DISNEY CHANNEL TRIVIA

...Peter McEnery, young hero of "The Moon-Spinners" (see page 12), also starred on film in Disney's "Fighting Prince of Donegal," on stage in England with the Royal Shakespeare Company, and recently on TV in "Pictures" for "Masterpiece Theater" and as Oberon in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

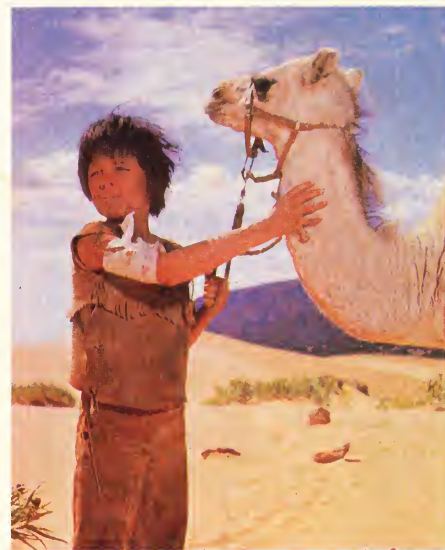

...Clay O'Brien, who has the title role in "One Little Indian" (see page 9), wanted the part so badly that he showed up for tests in Indian costume and black wig. Only later did the director discover that Clay had blond hair.

...In one of her earliest film roles, Jodie Foster plays Martha in "One Little Indian."

FAMILY "TRUST" FUND

"Five Mile Creek" and "One Little Indian" are about people learning to be honest and trusting despite mistakes and misunderstandings.

Watch the shows, then ask your children what they would do if they were in similar situations. What would you, as an adult, do?

ONE LITTLE INDIAN

TV Situation: Clint wants Mark to have a good home so he leaves him with Doris and Martha without telling him. Even though Clint's intentions are good, do you think his behavior is right? What would you do?

Real-Life Situation: You want to go swimming with friends. Your younger brother or sister wants to come too, but can't swim very well and would not be safe. What would you do?

FIVE MILE CREEK

TV Situation: Even though Maggie does not believe that her husband is an outlaw, she hides the poster with his picture on it from Hannah. She doesn't want Hannah to worry, but do you think she acts correctly? What would you do?

Real-Life Situation: You see your big sister with someone who has a reputation for irresponsible behavior. You don't want to worry your parents or be a tattletale, but you're concerned about her well-being. What should you do?

With A Smile and A Song...

"You and Me, Kid" features sing-alongs

For turning frowns around, there's nothing like a song. After all, who doesn't love to sing? Especially when the music is shared! The lyrics to two tuneful favorites from YOU AND ME, KID are printed here so you and your youngsters can learn and enjoy them together—anytime—anywhere.

Just You and Me
 Just you and me, kid,
 We're quite a pair!
 Just stick with me, kid,
 Think of the fun we'll share.
 We'll have the best time
 You ever saw two people have together.
 Gee kid!
 That's you and me.
 Just you and me, kid,
 You make me smile!
 Whatever will be, kid,
 You make it all worth while.
 We've got to go,
 It's farewell time.
 Tell them all who had a swell time.
 Gee kid! You and me!
 Yes you and me!

Words and Music by Robin Frederick

Loving Together
 Hold me in your arms,
 Or just take my hand.
 Look in my eyes.
 We both understand
 That sharing is love and
 Sharing are we...

A smile and a touch say
 We're so glad to be:
 Loving together,
 Living together,
 Singing a song...
 As we go along.
 Loving together,
 Living together,
 We'll find so much we can share
 Loving together.
